

I'm a member of the public who wants to keep the ownership rules intact. We do not need additional corporate consolidation that would diminish economic and creative opportunities for artists and other entrepreneurs. I understand that many of the large media companies provide different types of contents/channels, but I fear that the message, news and opinions from each one of those contents/channels will be the same. Our democracy needs opinions from a variety of sources and points of view!